

Mixed Salad Leaf seeds — Bright and Spicy mix

Height:	Varied
Suitable for:	Moist well draining soil in sun or part shade. Ideal for containers
Summary:	Bright and spicy salad mix is an easily grown addition to brighten up your salads. It is made up of a mix of white and yellow Pak Choi, Tatsoi, Mizuna and red mustard. It can be grown either by sowing outside during spring and summer into a finely raked seed bed, or in a large container outside or under cover or even on the windowsill for winter use.

More information:

The mix of leaves all have a similar growth rate making harvesting easy, they have a good mix of textures with a hint of spice.

Harvest for the kitchen on a 'cut and come again' basis once the leaves are 12 – 15 cm high, leaving the central shoots to produce more leaves for future use. You can get up to 3 harvests from the same sowing.

The leaves are great added to salads, sandwiches and as an attractive garnish.
